Developing Infrastructure for a Competitive Future.

Infrastructure represents an engine of competitiveness and an attraction for investment in any country. It increases prosperity, improves rates of economic growth and develops opportunities for inhabitants. It is a pillar of job creation, which strengthens industries in their processes of production, distribution and marketing. Increasing productivity by reducing lead-time and inventories, through the creation, expansion and improvement of roads, ports, airports and telecommunications; it enables not only the transportation of goods, but also of people and information.
